OBJECTING TO EXPERIMENTS
Anti-vivisectionists oppose such experiments as these performed on rabbits and a monkey.

Helen Hoopes' 12-year fight to stop animal experiments

By HEIDI VAN ZANT
Post Staff Writer

If Helen Hoopes had her way, calves wouldn't be used to test heart transplants, rabbits wouldn't be used for nicotine tests or mice in cancer experiments.

In fact, if this South San Francisco resident had her say, no animal of any kind would be used for any medical experiment.

She has gone beyond just thinking it is immoral and unjust to perform experiments on living animals. For the past 12 years she's actively campaigned against it.

A headstrong, vibrant blonde she speaks with conviction and emotion. She chooses her words oh-so-carefully, and speaks with force.

Although this retired government stenographer, who is "over 60," is uncomfortable being interviewed, she still speaks her mind. Consider:

"I would applaud the apprehension and imprisonment of the dehumanized animal experimenters, and I would champion the individuals who would dare to tear down the animal laboratories and rescue all the unfortunate animals."

Her contention is that living animals are no longer needed by scientists, and that there are alternatives to this "cruel, futile, immoral, unnecessary, wasteful, corrupt, dangerous, repetitive and stupid" practice.

Use cell and tissue culture and computer methods, Mrs. Hoopes said, instead of more than 100 million animals a year for experiments.

"It's sickening to hear such phrases as 'it's all for the good of humanity' and 'the animals are kindly treated' when I know the appalling fact is that in laboratories all over the world animals are being mangled in the name of science."

Mrs. Hoopes takes the bold stand that experiments on live animals are not justified at all—even for cancer research. Animals and humans have such different metabolisms that test results cannot be compared, she maintained.

"Perhaps a cure for cancer already exists but is being withheld because it is ineffective on laboratory animals," she said. "That was the case with digitalis, which was withheld for a long time because it dangerously raised blood pressure in dogs."

She notes that published news releases about animal tests includes the disclaimer that it is not known what the results on humans would be.

Her voice rises as she angrily describes LD-50 tests, in which she says a large group of animals is fed lethal doses of cosmetics, poisons or radiation until half of them die.

"The laboratory animal is so terrorized by these brutalities and their agony is so horrible that it is the lucky one that dies quickly," she said.

Not surprisingly, some live tests bother her more than others. These include forcing animals to get drunk or to smoke cigarettes; immersing, starving or poisoning them; or breaking their bones or administering spine-crushing tests.

Other examples she cites include inducing convulsions in dogs and cats to study their brain waves during a seizure, disemboweling a pregnant bitch to observe the maternal instincts in pain and fatally scalding 15,000 animals.

She has not seen any of these tests performed first-hand, but relies on news stories and information made available by the many animal organizations to which she belongs.

Her files are fat with letters she's sent to local and national leaders complaining about animal experiments. In 1973 she wrote a letter to a local rabbit impregnator which read, in part:

"Your work of impregnating rabbits for 'scientific' research is a fiendish, hellish activity. You and the breeders for 'scientific' research do the work of the devil—not God.

"If I thought it was God's work to torture animals in the laboratories and elsewhere, I would spit on God. I want no God like that."

The devout anti-vivisectionist says it is morally and emotionally against her principles to accept animals experiments. She said she prays for the animals.

"I can't understand people who don't care about defenseless creatures. We are supposed to be our brother's keeper," Mrs. Hoopes added.

Although she admits the "people who are effective in getting things done are calm," and she is not, her letter-writing continues.

And in recent months she has been circulating a petition calling for the use of non-animal research methods. She cites figures showing $2.9 billion annually is spent by federal agencies on animal research.

The petition was recently forwarded to several members of Congress with 800 signatures on it, many of them gathered recently at Tanforan Park Shopping Center.

This anti-vivisectionist, who has several cats, is adamant in her belief that scientists can use other methods. Her claim is that "true scientists know that the animal experimenters are the parasites of science and that animal experimentation is futile and proves nothing for human benefit."

The "torture" of animals in schools and laboratories is comparable to vicious street crimes involving humans, she said.

"I would not want to be left to the tender mercies of doctors who have been guilty of torturing animals."

A neighbor of hers, Susan McCarthy, has not been involved in the anti-vivisectionist movement for nearly as long, but her feelings are just as strong.

The 20-year-old calls herself an "animal lover" who has two dogs, five cats, a hamster and rabbit. Mrs. McCarthy said she became involved in the anti-vivisectionist movement for several reasons.

"I have a deep, abiding respect for all living creatures on this earth. That's reason enough for me—without even taking into consideration all the torture, cruelty, sadism, money-wasting, futility and immorality that's the crux of it all—to keep fighting until vivisection is abolished," she said.

LIKE HER neighbor, she vows to keep fighting for animal rights. And how long will that be?

"For as long as I live, and longer. I work full-time as a secretary in a pressure job and have a husband and family to care for, but that won't stop me.

"It's such a powerful and emotional issue that I make time for it. Anyone who has any respect for life should, too—no excuses accepted. Excuses don't change the ways."

Stanford University maintains animals are treated humanely

One is not likely to hear horror stories coming out of Stanford University on the mistreatment of animals used in research projects.

That's because the federal government requires frequent inspections and reports on the experiments, and enforces "very stringent" regulations to protect the animals, according to James Dewson, acting director of the division of laboratory animal medicine.

Not only do several federal agencies review the experiments, but a Panel on Laboratory Animal Care monitors research efforts. And if that isn't enough, "I exist to make sure" the animals are treated humanely, Dewson said.

Dewson, a Ph.D on the Stanford faculty as a professor of hearing sciences in the Department of Surgery, said that in June there were 7,000 animals being used on research projects.

Although he could not give an exact breakdown, the list includes dogs and cats, pigs, calves, monkeys, frogs, guinea pigs, mice and rats, rabbits, hamsters, goats and a dwarf horse with narcolepsy.

He was "not at liberty to discuss" individual experiments, but said typical research projects include using frogs to study the nervous system, dogs for surgical experiments and immunological responses and mice and rats to study genetics.

In the past, animals have been used in pioneering heart transplant research, in cancer experiments and in tests of the effectiveness of using insulin to treat diabetes.

They also have been used to develop vaccinations and to test cornea transplants, according to information provided by a spokesman for the Stanford University Medical Center.

His own experiments during the past nine years have dealt with brain research on 18 monkeys to study the effects of a stroke. He has found that damage to the auditory part of the left side of the brain has a severe effect on the ability to remember sounds.

The monkeys are housed in sturdy cages, usually one animal to a cage, in a red-tiled room behind Stanford Museum. The room is bright and clean, except for the feces scattered under the cages.

Dewson plays affectionately with the monkeys through the metal cage, calling them by name: "Pisces, Ernie, Silias."

"I have dreams where I see a monkey and know its name," he said with a laugh.

Dewson strongly defends the care his animals and other researchers' animals get, saying they are treated humanely.

"No one is trying to make life hard for animals," he said. "They are not kept in closets and sprayed with hot water."

He goes so far as to agree with the statement that the animals are appreciated, adding, "They're our friends. We like 'em." Later he noted, "You're not going to find out anything from an animal that's been mistreated."

The animals are called "vitally necessary" to medicine, he said, adding, "Just dissecting dead bodies won't do it. My own research would be nothing without monkeys. I can't use humans."

If a person opposed to live animal experiments (anti-vivisectionist) were to argue that the tests were useless because the metabolism in animals and humans is not alike, Dewson said he "would giggle."

He said it is "utterly wrong" that studying animals would not benefit humans.

If animal research had never been allowed, Dewson guessed that medicine would be "pretty much a brush-fire operation. It would be limited to paramedic research."

There are no horror stories at Stanford about animals being disembowled or brutalized, he

Reserves build-up chastised

Dollars and scents were two topics of concern Monday afternoon as the Board of Directors of the North San Mateo County Sanitation District held its second public hearing on a proposal to raise sewer rates 300 percent.

District Manager Peter Archuleta revised his original request for a rate hike from 59 cents to $1.76 per 100 cubic feet of water used, saying he believes a $1.28 rate will be sufficient.

He strongly urged that the district build its current $771,000 in reserves up to $1.8 million in order to assure fiscal stability.

But some of the two dozen citizens who attended the meeting angrily reminded the directors that the district spent $800,000 in unbudgeted funds last year correcting problems that might have been prevented.

Some of the unanticipated costs were for eliminating noise and odors problems caused by the new sewage treatment plant and for refunding $400,000 to sewer users who were overbilled.

The district serves 22,000 homes in Daly City, Colma and unincorporated Colma. The average number of units each residence uses is 9.21 per month.

Ernest Pezzola said, "You started out with a $7 million plant that costs $16 million now. And now you have odor and noise problems and you're asking us to pay the bill for something that was supposed to be completed."

He also chastised the directors for a two-and-a-half-year delay in a water reclamation project that was supposed to be generating revenues by now.

Elsie Garrison was more succinct. "It's a shameful situation we have in Daly City. It doesn't only stink literally. It stinks all the way around," she said, adding that homeowners would like to have fat reserves, too, but can't afford them.

Residents were incensed when Archuleta told them the sewer rate could be five cents lower per 100 cubic feet of water used if the Westborough Water District paid its bills on time, like everyone else.

Archuleta said he couldn't find anything in the district's contract with Westborough to compel the water district to pay on time. Citizens told him to keep looking.

They also suggested that the district lower the sewer rate by postponing some capital improvement projects, borrowing money rather than expecting sewer users to provide upfront cash during financially dry periods and cutting reserves down to the bare bones.

Archuleta discouraged all those ideas, stressing that postponing projects and the building of reserves would push off problems for next year.

Although he denied that the district was mismanaged last year, he admitted that the district did not have enough money during 1978-79 to prevent problems.

Noting that the district was understaffed last year, he recommended adding 14 positions to the current staff of 35.

The most severe cutbacks in personnel and operations that Archuleta said he could envision would lower the rate only six cents, to $1.22 per 100 cubic feet.

Conrad Pavellas of the Original Daly City Protective Association, Roseann Emerson of the Serramonte Homeowners Association and William Crocker of Westlake Associates all said the highest the rate should be is $1.00 per 100 cubic feet.

"A dollar rate is totally impossible to operate this district," Archuleta responded.

The most support he got came from William Wade of the Westlake Subdivision Improvement Association, who recommended that the

Here's how to save on sewer bills

Pessssssst! Want to know how to cut your sewer bills drastically?

The North San Mateo County Sanitation District revealed Monday that its possible at the present time for a sewer customer to pay absolutely nothing for sewer service because it has no minimum charge.

Since bills are calculated from water usage during the months of January and February, customers who plan vacations then or otherwise cut back on their water use also will save a great deal on their sewer charges.

The Board of Directors decided to base the charge on water use during January and February because those are the two months when most people use the least amount of water on their lawns and gardens.

District Manager Peter Archuleta said Monday that the district hopes to institute a minimum charge of $12 per year for sewer use during the coming year.

When directors objected that the minimum rate should be much higher, he said it is impossible to notify the public of a revised rate proposal before Aug. 6, when the new rates are scheduled to be enacted.

Assuming that $12 annual minimum is approved, sewer users who are stingy about using water next January and February could wind up paying just a dollar a month for sewer service.

Attorney, captain touch on feelings at hearing

By TERRY DAVENPORT
Post Staff Writer

Daly City Police Captain Roger Austin had the uncomfortable task Friday of telling Charles Garry in person that he believes the attorney is a Communist.

His testimony was part of the third day of Daly City's dismissal hearing against Officer Stephan Srock, who was suspended with pay March 15.

In a related matter, the State Supreme Court on Friday turned down Srock's petition to have a hearing in which he would have sought a writ of prohibition to block the dismissal hearing.

The charges against Srock are based on his alleged misconduct during a routine traffic stop Feb. 3, during which he admits he pointed his gun at a woman's dog, alleged misconduct at the scene of a multi-car accident Feb. 23 and the fact that he kept some property relating to a case at his home from Feb. 16 to March 26.

The hearing, originally scheduled to last only two days, was not completed Friday. The earliest date that all the parties involved could agree to resume is Sept. 11.

A transcript of the proceedings will be made to help the presiding officer, retired Superior Court Judge Louis Dematteis, remember all the testimony before he makes a recommendation as to whether Srock should retain his job.

City Manager David Rowe will take that recommendation and the said, adding, "I could not see that happening here at Stanford."

Dewson and others review all projects before approval is given.

He has no guilt about using animals in experiments because "I do everything I can do insure their comfort. They (researchers) have the good of humanity at heart."

Dewson, who has several small household pets of his own, said he hears from anti-vivisectionists "constantly, and they are fanatics. You can't say anything to them."

There are other animal research laboratories throughout the Bay Area, including ones at the University of California, Berkeley, San Francisco State University, the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Palo Alto, Stanford Research Institute and private drug companies, according to Dewson.

A representative of Syntex Pharmaseutical Co. in Palo Alto said the company has a "significant" medical facility for performing toxocology tests on dogs, rodents and primates.

William Gomez, director of corporate development and information systems, said the federal Food and Drug Administration requires drugs be used on animals before introduced to humans.

"They're a model for whether a drug will be toxic in a human being," he said.

Stephanie Gray, consumer affairs coordinator for the Food and Drug Administration in San Francisco, said experiments on living animals are not only useful, but required.

Only after preliminary tests have been made on animals can a new drug be tested on humans. It is not moral nor practical to experiment just on humans, Ms. Gray noted.

"Most people would agree it's not too ethical to experiment on humans," she said, adding that alternate methods such as cell cultures and computer tests are used now—but not as replacements for animal experiments.

"Nothing can really replace eventual testing on animals," Ms. Gray noted. "Not even human experiments could replace animal experiments."

She explained the FDA doesn't do much testing on animals itself—only enough to verify information from drug companies. The FDA operates a small laboratory in San Francisco with no animals and a much larger one in Washington, D.C.

When animals are used by the FDA to verify test results, Ms. Gray said they are "treated very well," and although it is "conceivable" they are in some pain, that usually isn't the case.

"You don't act mean to an animal to be mean to it," she said, maintaining they are treated professionally.

Ms. Gray noted that penicillin and the polio vaccination were discovered through animal experiments. And she adds, "If we do get a cure for cancer, it will be through animal research."

rate be $1.15—15 cents more than he had suggested last week.

Wade's proposal envisions building up reserves more slowly than Archuleta would like.

Obviously frustrated, Archuleta asked the directors pointblank for "more direction" about the rate hike they have in mind.

Director Victor Kyriakis declined to comment and Director John Ward was absent, but Director William Schumacher told Archuleta he would like reserves to be built up gradually.

Schumacher said he favored a rate "not higher than $1.15 and I don't know if I'll go that high."

The directors are scheduled to adopt the new sewer rate on Aug. 6 at 12:30 p.m. at the district office, 153 Lake Merced Blvd., Daly City.

testimony into consideration when he makes the final determination.

Garry walked a tight line as he tried to introduce testimony about Austin's feelings toward him. Dematteis would allow only questions concerning what he called Garry's "vendetta" theory—the premise that Austin and other Police Department officials conspired to oust Srock from the department.

Austin was surprising candid when Garry questioned him Friday about his feelings.

The attorney repeatedly referred to Austin's sworn declaration that he called Garry a Communist and said he "personified almost everything I detest and am opposed to" when he addressed all officers in the department April 11.

The captain got into hot water for making those remarks. His supervisors subsequently said in sworn statements they did not know in advance of Austin's plans to address officers on a personnel matter and would have prevented him from doing so had they known.

Austin is the only one of five city officials named in a suit Srock filed against Daly City whom the city has refused to legally represent.

But he was calm and seemingly self-assured as he said that he first had heard Garry identified as a Communist in the 1950s during hearings conducted by the U.S. House of Representatives Un-American Activities Committee.

"My background is very conservative," the captain declared. "From the time I was very young, I have always believed Communism to be diametrically opposed to the American way of government."

Austin said he formed opinions about Garry from "seeing your name in the paper (as) representing clients who in my own personal opinion were enemies of law enforcement."

He termed Garry's involvement in People's Temple matters as "suspicious," particularly, he said, since (the late) Jim Jones (leader of the organization) at one time professed to be a Communist and had plans to move the group to the Soviet Union.

Acting like a cat playing with a mouse, Garry asked sarcastically, "So from that you drew the fact that I was a Communist and anybody who would hire a lawyer such as myself particularly had no business being in the Daly City police force—isn't that right?"

When that question was repeated, Austin said he strongly objected to the second half of Garry's statement.

Under questioning, Austin admitted that he had formed a negative opinion about Garry at least 10 years ago—even though he had never met the attorney until recently—and that his reaction to learning that several Daly City police officers had hired Garry to defend them was one of "disbelief."

But Austin said, "The fact that he'd (Srock) hire you as his attorney had no bearing in my mind as to whether he should continue as a police officer."

Garry was not as successful in proving that Austin acted without the consensus of Srock's other commanding officers when he recommended on March 1 that Srock be fired.

Austin rattled off a number of other complaints about Srock that he said were shared by the four who reached the consensus: Lt. James Doran, Sgt. Stephen Steen, Sgt. Steven Aurillio and Sgt. Edward Lyons.

The complaints centered on Srock's alleged "careless handling" of a firearm, his arrest of the wrong person, his failure to report for work one day and his demeanor at an accident scene.

Srock was given a written reprimand for the first two incidents (the second one was erased from his charge sheet), he was suspended one day for the third incident and Austin said the complaint about Srock's conduct at the accident scene could not be substantiated, except for the fact that he had violated departmental rules by failing to wear his hat.

Garry asked no one in particular, "Is he serious?"

When Garry tried to establish that all police officers are the objects of complaints, Austin said that most are, but not all, and added that only one complaint had been filed against him during his 15 years in the department.

However, Austin stated that lie detector tests such as the one he said Srock had flunked are useful but not foolproof.

Although he admitted that he knew when he recommended Srock's firing that the car window during the dog incident could have been rolled down with two hands, Austin said he did not recall knowing that the window could be rolled up with one hand.

Summer offers two unique opportunities to Bay Area people.

First this area remains reasonably comfortable during the summer as the inland areas of California swelter, thus offering us the best of two worlds, daytime junkets to sun and evening respite at home with the fog and cool ocean breezes.

The second opportunity is the chance to welcome visitors from all over the globe. San Francisco and its suburbs draw tourists in wholesale lots. Sometimes localites entertain family from the midwest and east, on occasion we have the chance to welcome total strangers and introduce them to the joy and excitement of this portion of California.

The Jay Guerrero family of Serramonte falls into the latter group and for the past week they have hosted the John Cairns family from Langholm, Dumfriesshire, Scotland.

The Rev. John Cairns is in the United States as a part of an exchange program with a Presbyterian Church in San Luis Obispo and a part of the exchange of pulpits program included the opportunity to travel and explore California while his counterpart, the Rev. Jack Springer and his family, enjoy the same program in Scotland. Naturally, anyone visiting California must visit the Bay Area and the natural entre into this part of the state was with the Guerreros.

Linda Guerrero spent her childhood in San Luis Obispo where she and her family were very active in The First Presbyterian Church. Since her marriage to Jay and her move to Daly City, Linda has maintained her ties with her home church while giving active support to her locl parish, Lakeside Presbyterian Church.

Her personal ties, coupled with the fact that her family remains active in the San Luis Church, made her name the first one which came to mind when the Cairns' expressed a desire to come north for a sightseeing trip.

OIn addition to escorting their visitors about, the Guerrero's were hosts for a dinner party honoring the family from Scotland and providing an opportunity for new friends and local church people to get to know one another and exchange ideas and experiences.

The Cairns, John, Liz and sons Daniel, Ben and William, returned this past weekend to San Luis Obispo and, in only three more weeks, they will be returning to Scotland.

There is still time for members of the Daly City Chapter of AARP to sign up for the Japanese Tea Garden visit being planned for Aug. 20.

Call Mrs. Doris Johnson for additional information or to sign up for a car pool.

Mrs. Elizabeth Funderburg is still accepting reservations for the Fifty Plus Club trip to Lake Tahoe's eastern shore.

Contact her immediately if you are interested in this Aug. 21-22 jaunt.

Localites who remember the one time director of the Daly City Community Chorus, Patti Parks McClain, will be interested to know that the first anniversary of Patti's Museum of Vintage Fashion will be celebrated on Saturday, Sept. 15, and on Sunday, Sept. 30.

A fall fashion show, Hats Off to Hats! will be presented as a part of the celebration. The first show features the private collection of Claire Masters, the associate curator of the museum which is located on the grounds of Dunsmuir House in Oakland, and the second show will feature the collection of Mrs. Binden Stark of Palo Alto.

City, district settle

The Daly City City Council spent $54,037.28 in less than 15 minutes Monday afternoon.

The largest sum, $42,500, was allocated to the Jefferson Elementary School District as the city's share of the recent $110,000 out-of-court settlement of a lawsuit that the school district filed against Daly City.

Both the city and the school district declined to reveal before Monday how much of the settlement would be paid by Daly City. The remaining $67,500 will be paid by the city's insurance carriers.

The school district sued the city to force it to pay part of the $500,000 cost of reducing noise after streets adjacent to Colma Elementary and Intermediate schools were widened in a joint city-county project in 1972.

The county paid the district $90,000 in 1976.

The City Council authorized other payments Monday as follows:

$8,074.26 for uncollectible accounts in all city billing categories except water bills. Last year the city wrote off $8,654.89 in uncollectible bills.

$713 as the city's share of funding for the Neighborhood Family Project, a Daly City juvenile diversion program, from Oct. 1, 1979 through June 30, 1980. The bulk of the cost, $14,251, is being paid with state money. The city is donating office space.

$2,750 to City Attorney Albert Polonsky for representing the city at personnel hearing concerning city employees, including Police Officer Stephan Srock.

Child care center 'trainer' is fired

One of the primary organizers of the Daly City Community for Children's Services was fired Monday from her federally-funded job as "CETA trainer" for the child care organization.

Peggy Rendon, who has supervised day-to-day operations of the center since last year, said she was scheduled to be paid $1,000 per month under her Comprehensive Employment and Training Act contract through July 1980.

That was a relief to Ms. Rendon, who said her earnings from the center last year totalled less than $3,000.

But Ms. Rendon said she arrived at work Monday to find an unsigned memo on her desk that stated she was fired as of that day.

Ms. Rendon said she believes she was fired by Zaida Fernandez, who took over as president of DCCCS's board of directors July 17.

She said she and Miss Fernandez have had numerous disagreements.

Miss Fernandez was not available for comment.

Ms. Rendon said she was furious about the move. "I built this program. I think I'm allowed to a fair hearing — to at least be told what I have done wrong."

She noted that the other 15 CETA-paid staffers at the child care center, located in Vista Grande School in Daly City, also are "very upset."

The center, long a victim of political battles and funding shortages, currently is funded with a one-year CETA grant and parents' fees that are levied according to their ability to pay.

It provides child care for about 28 children each week.

Westlake group wants to separate from association

A group of 30 residents of subdivision 7A in Daly City's Westlake section agreed at a meeting Monday night to try to divorce the area from the Westlake Subdivision Improvement Association.

Subdivision 7A, like all Westlake subdivisions, is governed by covenants and restrictions first instituted when Henry Doelger built the area.

The regulations stipulate the kinds of shrubs, trees that residents may plant and the types of modifications they can make to their homes.

The 396 residents of subdivision 7A will have the first opportunity in 25 years to lift the convenants and restrictions this month.

WSIA Treasurer William Wade said all that's required to have an election in the area is a written request by Aug. 13.

Roberta Templeton said 7A residents are planning to present petitions demanding an election at the WSIA Board of Directors' meeting on Aug. 6 at 8 p.m. in the clubhouse at Westlake Park.

She said representatives also have signed petitions demanding that the San Mateo County district attorney's office look into possible misuse of funds and violations of the law by the association.

Residents who voted earlier this year at two elections held in other subdivisions overwhelmingly decided to maintain the convenants and restrictions.

THE DIET CORNER

By ELISE GENDAR

Some oddball facts to while away the day:

• The glue on a postage stamp has about one-tenth of a calorie. Use a sponge, not your tongue.

• Be glad you're not an elephant. It takes 200 pounds of food each day to satisfy the elephantine appetite.

• If your ice cream order is vanilla, then you share the popular taste. Chocolate is the national second choice.

• Grapefruit was largely unknown to Americans until the World's Fair of 1893 in Chicago.

Another fact to consider, and it's not at all oddball. There is no more effort involved in stripping calories from an old favorite recipe than in preparing it laden with fat, sugar and other weight-inspiring ingredients. For example:

JIFFY CLAM CHOWDER

1, 5 oz. can whole baby clams or minced clams (use juice)
2 c. non-fat dry milk powder, liquified
1 tsp. dried onion flakes
1 tsp. green pepper flavoring
½ tsp. salt
pepper to taste

Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Simmer for about 10 minutes.

If I have aroused your taste for trivia, I recommend a small book called "MIXED NUTS" by E. C. McKenzie. Signet publishes it and it costs $1.25. It's fun, and snacking away at the contents won't add an ounce. Enjoy!

NELL NORTON

Good morning, good cooks.

Every once in a while a recipe appears that sparks spirited discussion. Should be it classified as a salad or as a dessert?

Frozen Fruit Medley is one such recipe and whether you opt for salad or for dessert, the end result is utterly delicious. Non-dairy whipped topping blends beautifully with strawberry flavor gelatin, mayonnaise and fresh and canned fruit. Garnished with fresh sliced strawberries and additional whipped topping, here is a light refreshing dessert for a warm summer evening. Conversley, it is just as refreshingly served as a salad for lunch. Surrounded by crisp green lettuce and accompanied by additional mayonnaise or sour cream, it just hits the spot.

FROZEN FRUIT MEDLEY

1 can (8 oz.) chunk pineapple in juice
1 package (3 oz.) strawberry flavor gelatin
Dash of salt
1 cup boiling water
¼ cup lemon juice
1 container (4½ oz.) frozen whipped topping, thawed
1/3 cup mayonnaise
1 medium banana, diced
½ cup seeded halved red or green grapes
¼ cup diced maraschino cherries
¼ cup chopped nuts.

Drain the eight ounces pineapple, reserving juice. Add water to the juice to make ½ cup liquid. Dissolve the three ounces gelatin and dash of salt in one cup boiling water. Add the measured liquid and one fourth cup lemon juice. Stir well and chill until until thickened.

Blend the whipped topping with the third cup mayonnaise, one banana, one half cup seeded grapes and fourth cup each maraschino cherries and nuts; fold into gelatin. Pour into an 8x4- or 9x5-inch loaf pan.

Freeze until firm, about four hours or overnight. Unmold, cut in slices and serve as dessert or salad. Garnish with additional fruit and whipped topping, if desired.

Makes five cups or eight to 10 servings.

The eating habits of the crocodile

By DR. DAVID R. BARNETT

QUESTION: We saw a "wild-life show on television the other night and my 9-year old wanted to know how crocodiles can eat good size birds and digest the feathers. He said that bones could be chewed up, but feathers were different than bones.

B.L.

ANSWER: I'm sorry I'm not very current in my knowledge of the digestive tract of crocodiles but I would suspect that their digestive system may produce some special digestive enzymes that can break down feathers. Your son is certainly correct that bones are different from feathers and would require a different type of digestive process. Some days I get more questions that I am unable to answer than the ones that I can — these 9-year olds ask tough questions.

QUESTION: We are moving to Virginia and plan to fly. I plan to take one small parrot, a cockatiel, five parakeets, a pair of small pheasants and three pigeons. Can they be taken on the plane? Do they need a health certificate when taken to another state?

M.M.

ANSWER: Psittacine birds include parrots, cockatoos, parakeets and budgies. Virginia has specific requirements concerning this group of birds. These requirements include isolation of the birds and feeding them a diet impregnated with an antibiotic (chlortetracycline) for a period of not less than 15 consecutive days. The birds must be under the supervision of a veterinarian during this period, however, these regulations are waived for anyone who intends to make their residence in Virginia. I don't understand it either. You should check with the airline about taking them on the plane.

Small Mendocino is a natural for film makers

Perspective

By ARVILLE FINACOM

Next time you watch a late evening re-run of "The Russians Are Coming' The Russians Are Coming'' take a good look at the houses and scenery. Typically New England — perhaps on Cape Cod — right? Wrong! The movie, a low budget sleeper that soared to box office success, was filmed in Northern California.

Not only budget considerations made the choice of the small coastal town of Mendocino a fact. Its weathered but well preserved look of New England clapboard splendor is more traditional than many real "down East" towns whose city councils and planning commissions have succumbed to the lure of plastic and neon marks of progress.

It's no accident that Mendocino remains the way it does. History-conscious citizens fought many battles to retain its turn-of-the-century charm. Their efforts resulted in an economic boom not only for the art galleries, crafts shops and restaurants in the town itself but also for the entire length of the Mendocino Coast which stretches along the Pacific some 150 miles north of the Bay Area.

The Mendocino Coast has a variety of attractions for the vacation visitor. Along with the art galleries and boutiques of Mendocino and Caspar there are the surf, rock and ocean fishing grounds off Albion, Noyo and Westport. Salmon runs are regular. Abalone is common. Good fishing is the rule rather than the exception.

Both rocky and sandy coves mark the mouths of many rivers and small streams. Although beachcombers find few shells, agates are plentiful and piles of driftwood, bleached grey-white by exposure to sun, sea spray and scouring sand, lie where they've been thrown by winter storm waves.

In the wake of the late sixties "discovery" of the coast by tourists, a number of restaurants and overnight accommodations opened. Some are converted old Victorians, enriched with modern conveniences. There also are private and state park campgrounds.

MacKerricher State Park, three miles north of Fort Bragg, has the largest number of campsites, many with trailer hookup. Cleone Lake, an old tidal lagoon, blocked off from the ocean by the buildup of sand along the beach road, is kept stocked with fish. On the ocean side, there are tide pools with green and purple sea anemones and scuttling rock crabs; a black sand beach and the southern portion of a white sand one which extends for miles further north along the coast.

South of Fort Bragg two more state parks offer camping facilities. Russian Gulch has a small number of campsites and features a bicycle trail as well as a web of hiking ones which lead inland to Russian Gulch Falls and seaward to rocky headlands where a blow hole spouts.

Van Damme State Park has a cove providing skin divers with easy ocean access, a good-sized campground, and a series of trails of varying lengths and difficulty. A third of a mile on the level takes one around the bog, a hollow filled lushly with skunk cabbage and swamp alder. A more strenuous round trip of seven miles leads to both Fern Canyon with its varied display of greenery and the Pygmy Forest, an area in which trees grow naturally as miniatures.

The Japanese art of Bonsai, the careful culturing and cultivating of dwarf specimens of trees and shrubs, draws admiration and respect for a gardener's time and effort. It's quite a different experience when one views natural bonsai. There is wonder at the struggle the living organism goes through to survive in such inhospitable conditions.

Pygmy Forests (there are several inland from the Mendocino Coast) grow on "Podzol," a Russian word for "gray colored soil." The conditions creating podzol generally include a flat landscape with no stream drainage. Over the centuries rain water collecting in puddles leaches out nutrients and salts. Eventually the minerals carried downward into the soil by the leaching action solidify into "hardpan," an impenetrable barrier to tree roots.

Decomposing forest litter, steeped in rain water to a highly acid herb tea, helps make podzol the most acid in the world, about the same as vinegar. It's truly a wonder that the mature Mendocino Cypress, Bishop and Bolander Pines, the rhododendron and manzanita shrubs attain even the miniature size they do.

Those interested in learning more about the complex interaction among soils, climate and geology that produces conditions in Mendocino County almost unique in the world, can visit the Ecological Staircase. Space doesn't permit a review here of the fund raising efforts and promotional work of John Olmstead and the "Man in Nature" group which lobbied for public acquisition of "staircase" land along Jug Handle Creek. Enough to say that the area is now under state parks jurisdiction.

An explanatory map of the terraces along the "staircase" is posted seaward of the marked parking lot just south of Jug Handle Creek Bridge on Highway One. Anyone can hike the trail alone, or, on Saturdays until September 15, participate in a seven mile round trip, five-hour, ranger-led walk which meets at the parking lot at 10 a.m. Bring water and a lunch.

If it had not been for the buildup of the lumber industry around the middle of the last century, the entire coastal area would probably not have been settled. The lure of profit from the stands of Coast Redwood and Douglas Fir made Fort Bragg a boom town in the 1880's.

The Mendocino County Museum chronicles the colorful history of these logging days. By the turn of the century the cut and run operators were gone but logging still goes on. Georgia Pacific operates a large sawmill almost in the heart of downtown Fort Bragg.

A ride through the forests of the area is possible daily on The Skunk, which travels 40 miles acros the Coast Range inland to Willits following the Noyo River for much of the time. Advance reservations for this popular train ride are a must. Contact California Western Railroad, P.O. Box 907, Fort Bragg, CA 95437 for information.

Whether one visits the Mendocino Coast for active recreation or simply to contemplate nature and man's place within the scheme of things, there's plenty to do and see. The Mendocino County Director, available free at most businesses, gives details.

To borrow from the jingle used to promote another popular resort area, the Mendocino Coast is "less than a tankful of gas away." If you haven't yet explored this part of California, this summer may be the perfect time to do so.

Daly City youths learn computer terminals

More than 400 Daly City students are attending a five-week summer school program provided by the Emergency School Aid Act funds.

The summer school classes are a continuation of the Jefferson Elementary School District's 1978-79 ESAA Pilot Program.

The point program has three components: Two computer labs, three tutorial learning centers and two high potential classes.

The computer labs are located at two schools where children work at the computer terminals to receive pre-programed drills and practice in the basic skill areas (mathematics, reading, critical reading, problem solving, and language arts skills).

The tutorial learning centers are for students who need reinforcement and individual tutorial help in reading, language arts and mathematics.

The high potential classes provide the opportunity for children who are potentially high achievers to experience activities in critical reading and writing skills, critical thinking skills and science and research skills.

The 50 high potential students also are receiving a unique summer school experience working with computer programming.

Steven David, a Daly City businessman, loaned the Jefferson district 25 Commodore Pet Computers and a Nester Cluster One memory system.

Fifty Daly City students, ages ranging from 9 to 13 years, are discovering a basic understanding of computer technology and programing for five weeks.

The objectives in allowing young children to experiment with computer programing is to explore the educational possibilities for the students, to teach computer literacy and to provide the students with a new avenue for learning and acquiring data in a classroom setting.

Daily, for approximately two hours, the high potential students work at their own computer. The students soon discover the computer is a tool or vehicle by which they gain experience in critical thinking.

The students also discover the computer is a machine which will do nothing until it is directed to, and the computer will do nothing unless it is directed properly.

Consequently, the children have the experience that enables them to solve many new problems and concepts, unconsciously the students acquire the skill and self-confidence to try new and challenging problems.

During the past few weeks, students have been highly motivated to learn how to use the computers, and are successfully mastering the language and appropriate terminology which is necessary in order to communicate with the Commodore Pet Computers.

Students already have learned to program, store programs on the NESTAR disc, make alterations and retrieve information accurately from the Nestar disc system. Students will receive exposure to a series of developmental activities and concepts.

Already most students can successfully understand and master many of the activities on the attached listing.

The majority of the students remain after school

COMPUTERS

This student in the Jefferson Elementary School District is one of more than 400 who are learning about computers this summer in an ESAA Pilot Program.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD ★ JOHNSON

Prominent guests visit Phil Lehr's

Among prominent dinner guests at PHIL LEHR'S Pay-By-Ounce Steakery, on the lower level of the S.F. Hilton Tower, the other p.m. were Hillsborough Chief of Police William A. Key and his wife, who hosted a gourmet dinner party for San Francisco friends ... ROSE and TED OSAKI have created a beautiful and relaxing atmosphere at their new KOHARU Japanese restaurant on Fourth Avenue, San Mateo, in which to enjoy an unusual selection of Traditional Japanese cuisine. Serving lunch and dinner, special arrangement for parties and groups ... Prime Rib, Roast of Chicken or Veal Parmagiana, the popular "dinner specials" at ALFREDO'S restaurant in San Mateo, continue to be dinner attractions from 5 to 11 p.m. seven days a week ... ROGER NICOLAS has found it isn't possible to adequately serve all who come to his LA POTINIERE, located in the arcade complex known as "The Theater," for lunch and dinner in the attentive manner he maintains in his French restaurant. He has also found it unavoidable to have to turn away some who arrived without reservations. So, in order to be fair to everyone, Roger has announced that, henceforth, reservations will be required for both lunch and dinner.

Wed. at Tillie's is family dinner night

You never know what the special will be on Wednesday family dinner night at TILLIE'S "LIL' FRANKFURT till you get there. Owner/chef TILLIE SCHOLTZ welcomes all who flock to her German and continental restaurant in Moss Beach for the family-style feed to sit back and enjoy home-cooked, old-country specials for just $4.29 ... DEAN LEHR'S delectable Alani Salad at LEHR'S GREENHOUSE in San Francisco is an instant summertime refresher. Featured daily at luncheon, it's a ripe tomato stuffed with chicken salad on a bed of mixed greens, garnished with green pepper, egg wedges and asparagus and topped with a delicious macadamia nut dressing ... You'll love the relaxed atmosphere of a French country inn at L'AUBERGE restaurant, Atherton/Redwood City. Owner LOUIS FRUTSCHI provides a casual, yet elegant setting for enjoying French specialties ... At ROMANO'S Italian restaurant in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, pizza isn't just a round flat pastry with a few random ingredients on it. Like everything else owner ENRICO ROMANO does, a pizza is a major production and a gourmet triumph that can either be a complete meal or a part of the dinner, to be enjoyed in the restaurant or ordered to take out. Many different combinations and several sizes — all at moderate prices.

Ray Plunkett's Tahoe Mariner

RAY PLUNKETT'S TAHOE MARINER, situated on the North Shores of Lake Tahoe, is a popular hotel/casino for fanciers of water sports and beautiful summertime scenery. There is round-the-clock gaming, nightly entertainment, cocktails, gourmet dining room, and coffee shop facilities. The family-type atmosphere is also an attraction for many service clubs in the area, which do their entertaining in the banquet rooms or dining room ... Special parties can be arranged for Sundays at BAYHILL LOUNGE in San Bruno by advance arrangement (ask for Mike). Regularly closed on Sunday, the club is a natural for club and company parties and social events (bar, food service and dancing). The NEW TRI-SOUNDS entertain for dancing on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights from 9 p.m. ... Luncheon specials are served daily, Monday through Friday, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., at VINCE'S Italian and Seafood restaurant in San Mateo. There are 10 regular luncheon offerings, plus an extra different special each day ... The crew at JOHN'S PLACE, in downtown Burlingame, makes it a personal project to see that you feel welcome — and that includes the friendly lady bartenders on the day shift, DEBBIE and SANDY (they're the daughters of Owner JERRY LYERLA) and Bill Burke, who presides over the mixing during the night shift. . . ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB, in the heart of San Francisco's Geary Street "Theater Row," is a discovery for wine connoisseurs. Their admirably selected wine list features fine California and vintage imported wines at retail store prices ... To make a great evening perfect, preface your evening of dancing at BIANCHINI'S in Daly City with one of their famous six-course North Beach-style Italian dinners, priced at $5.50.

La Bella Pasta overlooks lagoon

SALVATORE FAVA brings the same Italian cuisine to his LA BELLA PASTA, located on the boardwalk overlooking the lagoon at Edge Water Place Shopping Center, Foster City, which has made his La Contadina restaurant in San Francisco's North Beach so famous. Clip the ad which is valid for $1 off any dinner main course entree through Aug. 5 ... One of the reasons why so many Bay Areans have become "regulars" at NICK'S restaurant in Rockaway Beach is that this large full-service steak and seafood restaurant is open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 2 a.m., serving breakfast, lunch and dinner at fair prices. Also part of the GUST family's restaurant mecca are THE MOONRAKER and CAPTAIN CHARLES ... Chimichanga and Carne Con Chile Colorado, served with refried beans or Mexican rice, salad and corn tortillas, are among the zesty Mexican specialties at LA PINATA in downtown Burlingame ... For a touch of individuality in decor, cuisine and service, visit the OLD COUNTRY INN in Burlingame. Owners MARILYN and NATHAN SCHMIDT bring their style of personalized attention to quality and taste to lunches and dinners. Famous for many specialties, perhaps the house salad dressing draws the most comment ... Desserts are another big feature, and all are from the famed Fantasia in San Francisco. RICHARD TRAINOR, manager of JIM SNIADECKI'S SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S restaurant in Redwood City, is always on hand to discuss the specialties of the house as well as to point out the celebrities who are frequent diners.

Books, periodicals on the ecology of animals

Sam Chandler

Remember those terms: the Age of Ecology, the Era of Environmental Awareness, Save the Animals, Wildlife Conservation, Endangered Species?

Seven or eight years ago they were spoken over and over and printed in the newspapers at least once a day. Under the pressures of the energy crisis and the runaway economy, many people have forgotten such terms and the concepts they embodied.

Yet the ecology of animals is a subject that is dealt with in many of the books and periodicals that are issued from the nation's presses these days. Indeed, animal ecology occupies the minds of a wide range of writers from conservationists to city and regional planners.

An article found in the July 23 issue of the U.S. News and World Report is among the most recent pronouncements. In it the authors state that "wild creatures great and small are suddenly thriving in man's shadow." Beavers and alligators, raccoons, possums, skunks and prairie dogs are invading cities and suburbs.

From Pismo Beach come complaints that sea otters are fighting fishermen for the clams that grow in the nearby waters.

In all of the "Old West" coyotes are migrating from the wide-open spaces to densely settled cities and towns. Timber wolves in Minnesota sometimes attack household pets.

In Florida alligators are found in rivers and lakes and even in swimming pools. They are "slithering out of the Everglades by the thousands. They like to sun themselves in people's back yards along Florida's canals and rivers."

This condition led Thomas M. Franklin of the Urban Wildlife Research Center, Inc. to warn, "Wild animals aren't going away. It's not a question of whether we can live with them — the question is how we can live with them." To this the authors of the article add that society must increasingly take account of wildlife in its plans ... when possible, developers and planning officials should include wildlife habitats — woods, meadows, or ponds in their projects.

What is happening to wild animals, says William J. Conway, is a different kind of captivity wherein wild creatures are conditioned so they can no longer survive unless they change their habits.

SISTER CITY BOYS

A youth baseball team from San Mateo's sister city in Japan — Toyonaka — is visiting San Mateo and the bay area, and playing some exhibition games with San Mateo Little League teams. Between games the visitors(photo at left) stopped by Candlestick Park to watch the Giants in action (that's catcher Mike Sadek signing autographs for them). The visiting players also got trophies and autographed yearbooks from Bobby Miller of the San Mateo National Little League All-Stars, who beat the Japanese team, 8-7, Thursday night. Just before the game, Toyonaka coaches Shigenori Motoyama and Chikara Ikeda gave playrs Hajime Ikeda (5) and Takanobu Iraki some last minute instructions.

Upsets scored in RC and Burlingame 'B' leagues

Upsets in the Redwood City and Burlingame B leagues highlighted women's slowpitch softball action this week.

Two new teams, Mic's Auto Body of Redwood City B and D&M Towing of Burlingame B, knocked off teams that had been first-half league champions. Both teams make an appearance for the first time in the rankings this week.

Burlingame

The city's first-ever women's "B" league opened Monday with John's Place knocking off Skyline Realty, and D&M Towing and Royal Racquet scoring upsets.

D&M's Liz Curtis went 3-for-3 at the plate while driving in three runs on a double and two singles.

Curtis, a left-centerfielder, also threw out a runner at third after a tagup for a double play to help give Kathy Anderson a win in her first pitching assignment.

Royal Racquets, which had lost to Low Cost Painting in the first-half finals, turned the tables by dumping its rivals 6-3. Lynn Ruiz was the winning pitcher and was backed by Ginger Cunningham, Candy Kuntz and Melinda Murray.

Foster City

Senor Pepe's continued its mastery of the "C" league and ran its string to 6-0 by beating Barberia 5-2 Monday to end the first half of play.

Outstanding players in the game for Senor Pepe's included Ellen Cortopassi, Cheryl Hollinger and Carol Lindquist.

Millbrae

Just when it looked like the fog at the top of the league was going to clear, a small upset, Frah's 13-3 defeat of Straw Hat, resulted in real confusion — a four-way tie for first with league play over.

C&M Plating, Frah's Boats Ballbangers, Hoot Judkins, and Straw Hat Pizza all concluded scheduled play with 11-3 records.

Hoot Judkins had a chance to wrap up sole possession of the round-robin crown, but fell apart in its last game against Frah's. Overthrogs, outfield collisions and overslides plagued Hoot Judkins.

Hoot shortstop Alma Saucedo did crunch another over-the-fence homer and a double, but the Greenleaf family, playing for Frah's, countered with its own display of strength.

Barbara Greenleaf, the mother of team members Chris and Liz, rapped three hits including two doubles, and was the winning pitcher. Rightfielder Chris contributed a single.

Shortstop Liz was the defensive spark, making 11 putouts and assists. Liz also singled twice and made a clean pickup of a grounder, stepped on second, and threw to first for a double play.

All four teams will be involved in the playoffs beginning Monday, July 30, at 6:30 p.m. at Green Hills fields. Just before game time, the four teams involved will draw, by lots, their opponents and fields. The winners of Monday's games will play Tuesday, July 31 for the league championship.

Pacifica

Due to the rainstorm last weekend, Slim's Carpet Care did not get in a complete game at the Burlingame Tournament, and so all Pacifica teams were dormant this week.

There will be a manager's meeting tonight at 7 o'clock at the Sharp Park Library Community Room for those interested in participating in a late-summer open league.

San Bruno

The Flyers downed Dan Co with pitcher Sue Marszalack getting a win and Kerry Petris smashing a double to run the Flyers' record to 2-0. Penny Perkins drove in a run with a single while Debbie Fields made two tough catches in left.

Julie Presta drove in two runs to help give Cal Taco their first win of the season at the expense of the winless Doves.

Fram's pounded the outclassed Doves 26-1 to remain the league's leader. The Steamers-Rainbow Palms game was called with about an inning and a half left due to darkness, and will be resumed at a later date.

League Standings: Fram's Flashers 4-0, Flyers 2-0, Hawks 2-0, Omni Vest 2-1, Rainbow Palms 1-1, Cal Taco 1-2, Lagoon Treasure Chest 1-2, Steamer's 0-2, Dan Co 0-2, the Doves 0-3.

South San Francisco

Barry Nagle of the Rec Dept. announced that seven teams have signed up for the late-summer women's league: the Garden Club, Guy F. Atkinson, See's Candies, Century 21, The Wild Ones and Jade Dragons No. 2.

Action in the C-D level single, round-robin league will take place on Saturdays and will begin on Aug. 18. An opening for one more team remains. Interested parties are urged to contact the Rec Dept.

NOTES — There's a new book available, with some helpful hints on the Slowpitch softball game. The book Slowpitch for Women by Budsberg and Fulton is available for $9.95 to P.O. Box 2334, Olympia, Washington 98507.

Pacifica Soxers in nationals

Pacifica's Bobby Sox Majors All-Stars made sure that there will be at least one County representative to the national tournament next month.

They had to do it the hard way, but finally downed West San Leandro in two games in the championship round to win the San Anselmo Tournament and the right to advance to the Buena Park games Aug. 18.

Pacifica lost the first contest to West San Leandro, 8-7, in eight innings, took the second and the title, 12-2.

Annabel Holland slugged three hits in the first match, driving in a run on each hit — a double and two singles. Cathy Clark and Alisa Ducca each rapped a pair of safeties, and Laura La Rosa went 4-for-5.

In the second game, La Rosa cracked a couple more hits to wind up 6-for-10. Clark and Holland each wound up with five hits.

The Coastsiders parlayed singles by Clark, Ducca, and clean-up hitter Holland, plus a pair of WSL errors, into four first-inning runs.

Geri Wheeler got the championship game win, throwing a four-strikeout six-hitter. Wheeler finished 3-0 in the tourney and gave up just one walk in 21 tournament innings.

Mountain View Tournament

It was a different story for the San Carlos Soxers at the Mt. View tourney, where the All-Stars played their first truly bad game of the tournament, losing 17-0 to Foothill in the semifinals Wednesday night.

Foothill pitcher Ndidi Opia fired a one-hitter. San Carlos batter Lynne Gaal got the local's only hit when she lined a changeup to left field in the last inning, the sixth.

Flying Goose annexes crown

When the going gets tough, the saying goes, the tough get going.

It looked like the going could get very tough for the Flying Goose Joe DiMaggio baseball team of Daly City when it took to the Marchbanks Field diamond Sunday to play visiting Millbrae, with the Peninsula league championship on the line.

True, Flying Goose was going against a team it had beaten three times in as many meetings during the regular season. But this was a vastly different Flying Goose team taking the field Sunday.

Flying Goose had to play Sunday without three injured regulars: Dave Maxion, Nolan Smith and Roger Homer. Homer was Flying Goose's most recent injury victim; he got hurt in Flying Goose's first-round playoff victory over South San Francisco last Wednesday evening.

Nevertheless, even though only four of its players were playing in their regular positions, Flying Goose coasted to a decisive 14-1 playoff victory over Millbrae, clinching an outright championship for the Daly City club.

Now it's on to the regionals for Flying Goose, which meets Marin DiMaggio at 1 p.m. on Saturday, August 11, at Marchbanks Field in the opener of a best-of-three series. The teams' second game will take place on the following day in Marin; a coin flip gave Marin the home field advantage, so, if necessary, a third contest would follow the second game in Marin.

The winner of that series travels to Fairfield for the annual state tournament, which gets under way on August 15 and runs through August 19. Eight teams will qualify for that double-elimination tournament, won last year by Stockton.

"Unless we get really big heads," said Flying Goose Coach Tom King, "I think we have a good shot at going to the state — and maybe winning it. I think our league is really one of the strongest around."

Right-hander Don Parks pitched a strong game for Flying Goose Sunday, holding Millbrae to three hits through the first six frames. In the seventh, with the game well in hand for Daly City, right-hander Rich Baxley relieved Parks and pitched an inning of hitless ball.

Although the final score indicates a laugher, Millbrae was still very much alive until the bottom of the sixth inning — when Flying Goose erupted for 11 runs.

Trailing 3-0, Millbrae scored in the top of the sixth when Bill Healy drew a walk, John Mangiante drilled a double and Burlingame High's Greg Barton grounded out, plating Healy for 3-1.

In the last of the sixth, however, Flying Goose erased all doubt. After Brett Arnott was hit by a pitch, Steve Costelli drew a walk and southpaw Jeff Dietrich smacked a single to load the bases with no outs. After Steve Evans lined a two-run single to left-center field, making it 5-1, Stuart Ramirez singled to load the bases again.

After Doug Price belted a two-run double to left-center, John Grealish lined a two-run single to left-center, making it 9-1. Now Flying Goose was having fun. A single up the middle by Greg Eagleton moved Grealish over to second. After a popout, Arnott walked to pack the bases again.

Costelli smashed a single to left, plating Grealish and leaving the bases loaded. Then Dietrich promptly unloaded them by slamming a 340-foot blast to right-center for a majestic grand slam — not to mention Flying Goose's 12th hit and an insurmountable 14-1 lead.

It's evident: Willie Mays has no pride

It's quite evident, now. Willie Mays has no pride.

This conclusion is based on the evidence presented recently in a story by Art Rosenbaum, San Francisco Chronicle sports columnist.

Essentially, Rosenbaum explained, a proposed "night" honoring Mays at Candlestick went a-glimmering when, in effect, Mays himself squashed it by demanding a pay-off. Like maybe a $60,000 annuity for Willie's old age.

MAYS, it seems, still can't fathom how San Francisco never "accepted" him because of the memories of Joe DiMaggio. Mays, as Rosenbaum pointed out, once told Merv Griffin, "Everybody (in San Francisco) thought there was only one center fielder in the world. That was Joe D. He was their idol. . . . They resented me."

Can anybody imagine Joe DiMaggio demanding payment for a day honoring him?

After Mays makes what has to be the inevitable demand on the Hall of Fame for a cash award instead of the old bust and plaque, he might stop to consider the class and pride of Joe DiMaggio, and then perhaps he will no longer wonder why San Francisco baseball fans idolize DiMaggio the man and merely respect Mays the player. Big talent, small man.

I suppose it's the trendy thing for sports commentators now to say something nasty about the All-Star game's selection process, but I've been doing that for years and I'm tired of it, and besides, all-star games basically bore me.

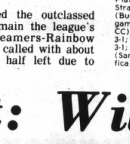
I DO THINK it's ironic that certain players refuse to play the game despite the fact that it puts money in the coffers of their retirement fund. But personally, I don't care about them or their fund, either.

I am surprised that nobody except Joe Niekro and Houston baseball writers commented on the fact that the National League's leading pitcher at the moment of the All-Star game was completely ignored by manager Tom Lasorda.



Le Pacini

Everybody concentrated theib ire against Lasorda for his not having picked Willie McCovey, and, truthfully, McCovey deserved it, not only because of his Hall of Fame-like total record, not only because, at his age, he may never get another chance, but also because he happens to be having a very good year.

The only trouble is that Willie Stargell, who is almost as old and venerated and who has a damned illustrious record himself, is having a better year than McCovey: much higher batting average, more home runs and a better home-run ratio per times at bat, and about equal in RBI's. Thus, if McCovey was picked by Lasorda, Stargell should have been picked, too.

AND THEN either Lou Brock would have had to have been shoved out, or two outstanding young players having even better years than McCovey and Stargell would have had to have been left off the team. Can you imagine the yelling?

So Lasorda was smart in not picking McCovey. He picked for his required respected old-timer Brock, a man who had already announced his retirement, a man who had absolutely no chance of ever again making an All-Star game. Lasorda knew that McCovey, at least technically, would have at least one more chance, because Big Mac had already announced his intention of playing into four decades. Lasorda also knew that Stargell would be back.

Meanwhile, if Bowie Kuhn would get off his posture, he could declare All-Star game dispensations for old-timers such as McCovey. Bowie runs this particular show and he can really do just about anything he damn well pleases. It's a one-shot affair, so who would complain if the rosters were bigger, or one team had a player more than the other team?

The All-Star game is supposed to be for the fans, a spectacular, a lot of fun. So give the fans their fun, Bowie, and do something spectacular next time something like this comes up. Just say something like, "Dammit, I'm the Commissioner of Baseball and I think it would be good for the game for Willie McCovey to be in the All-Star lineup, and I hereby declare that he is on the roster."

A simple solution for a simple problem.

SUDDEN THOUGHT:

When we used to think of excellence in baseball, we equated it with $100,000 annual salaries.

Now we think in terms of million dollar salaries, and sometimes they're only for designated hitters.

That's a strange phenomena, folks — a combination of inflation and deflation concurrently. Inflated money, deflated talent.

The Giants are in an awkward position with their pitching staff. Soon, because the Giants are carrying 11 pitchers and are thus short a hitter off the bench, somebody or somebodies will have to go. Obviously, it will have to be a so-called second line pitcher.

The problem is, though, that it's now the "second line" pitchers who are holding the staff together, and you obviously can't get rid of Vida Blue or Bob Knepper, or even Ed Halicki, whose market value now must be very low because of his continual physical problems.

* * *

BEST GUESS for eventual departure at this point is Tom Griffin. But next season, if they ever get their ailments straightened away, you can look for Halicki and Randy Moffitt to be traded. And if Sparky Anderson still loves The Count, as Sparky did when he was in Cincinnati, watch for an inter-league with Detroit, which, with Mark Fidrych's future very clouded, is pitcher short and power-long.

SUDDEN STATISTIC:

Not only have the Giants suddenly become a power hitting club, they are now second in the league in stolen bases only to swift Houston.

That adds up to speed, the best offense in the NL, an average defense . . . and terrible pitching. What a difference a year makes. And what a difference good pitching makes.

Speaking of McCovey and Stargell, as I was above, brings to mind an interesting column recently written by Sporting News columnist Leonard Koppett.

Assuming the stance that the idea of baseball is to score runs, and that a home-run is therefore the most important single element in baseball because it scores a run by the efforts of only one batter with no outside help from anyone else, Koppett puts forth the theory that home-run hitters are the most valuable types of players.

TO PUT across his point, he chose the 42 best hitters in history (those players who got at least 2,000 hits, or at least 400 home-runs, or at least 1,400 RBI), and divided their number of RBI by their number of hits to get a measure of how well each batter made his hits count, for a statistic reflecting RBI per hit. Following are the top nine in this class:

Babe Ruth (.767), Harmon Killebrew (.707), Joe DiMaggio (.694), Ted Williams (.693), Stargell (.689), Yogi Berra (.665).

Others in the .660 class were: Mel Ott, Eddie Matthews, Ernie Banks, Joe Cronin, Duke Snider, Al Simmons, Mickey Mantle, Frank Robinson, Jim Bottomley and Henry Aaron.

Now, don't you think that Lasorda, or Kuhn, or SOMEBODY, should have put McCovey AND Stargell on the All-Star team?

NEW OFFICERS

Family planning classes

Classes in natural family planning will begin Aug. 15 at 7:30 p.m. in Mary's Help auditorium.

A $12 fee entitles participants to lecture sessions, personal counseling and instructional materials.

Natural family planning, as taught at Mary's Help, is based on the observation of cervical mucus which indicates fertile and infertile times. Once the woman has learned to identify the changes in her own reproductive cycle, the decision to achieve or avoid pregnancy is up to the couple.

Storage dangers

The storage of gasoline in portable containers in the trunks of automobiles as a method of combating the present fuel crisis is a dangerous and possible fatal practice, Gordon Vickery, administrator, U.S. Fire Administration, has warned.

"We have received calls of inquiry about the possibility of storing extra fuel in the trunks of cars and I would like to emphasize that this is an extremely dangerous practice," Vickery stressed.

"Depending on the heat within the trunk, the gasoline can rapidly expand, releasing flammable vapors. Then, any type of spark can cause an explosion," he said. "Also, rear-end collisions, or any type of accident, could puncture the container, also causing a fire."

Vickery also outlined procedures for the storage of gasoline in a private residence.

"Actually there is no reason to store gasoline in a private residence other than for fuel for a lawn mower, etc. In a home the storage should never exceed one gallon, in an approved container, and always away from any source of heat," he explained. "In an outbuilding the storage can be up to 10 gallons (two, five gallon approved containers), and again away from any heat souce."

Vickery called on service station operators to cooperate by observing safety practices in the filling of portable containers.

"Under no circumstances should gasoline ever be placed in either glass or other unapproved containers," he warned. "Some cities and communities already have laws prohibiting the filling of any container other than an approved safety can. However, in the areas not covered by ordinance, service station operators can enhance the safety of the entire community by refusing to fill unsafe containers.

"I know the possibility of running out of gas is a worry to all of us," he concluded. "Yet, the possibility of an explosion, endangering the lives of loved ones certainly exceeds the need for extra gallons of gas."
